MESSAGE FROM OUR CHAIR

Hello everyone,

The start of a new growing season typically holds fresh promise and excitement about what the year ahead will bring. After all, spring ushers in longer days, warmer weather, a new growing season, and new livestock.

This spring, that usual excitement may be tempered with worries resulting from industry challenges. In parts of Canada, for example, poultry producers are facing an outbreak of High Pathogenic Avian Influenza. Across Canada, we are dealing with increased crop input costs. Globally, we are shocked by the war in Ukraine, the subsequent humanitarian crisis, and the potential impacts on global food supplies.

As we continue to chart our paths ahead through these troubling times, we need to keep our farm business management plans top of mind; “regularly following a written farm business plan contributes to peace of mind and more effective coping mechanisms,” Farm Management Canada’s Healthy Minds, Healthy Farms report shows.

And these plans are not static documents; we must continue to revisit and refine our plans to ensure they meet the needs of our families and our operations.

Early this year, I carved out the time to take a course on commodity marketing with my father. While the course was a great learning opportunity, it was only one step in the process. Now, we must use what we learned to revisit our marketing plan and implement new strategies. With the myriad of pressing seasonal demands, this work will take discipline. After all, the spring pastures and the fields are much more alluring to many of us than the farm office. But the resiliency and success of our operations depends on our work in our farm offices, alongside our work in fields, barns, and greenhouses.

As usual, our quarterly newsletter includes information on the programs and educational offerings available through Farm Management Canada. Be sure to watch your inboxes for our e-blasts with more timely reminders, too. Farm Management Canada staff and partners are hard at work on a range of programming and events to support a resilient and prosperous Canadian agricultural industry that prioritizes farm business excellence. To achieve this vision, we need continued collaboration with producers and industry partners including commodity groups, industry associations, educators, academic institutions, and government.

As always, thank you for your continued dedication to farm business management and your support for Farm Management Canada. And all the best for the busy spring season!

Sincerely,

Andrea Gal

2022 is a very special year for Farm Management Canada as it marks 30 years since we started this incredible journey as the Canadian Farm Business Management Council with Wilson Loree at the helm and government and industry uniting to help farmers achieve farm business excellence.

So much has changed for our organization as we have worked through each agricultural policy framework and have been challenged to rethink and revise our programming to meet the everchanging needs and priorities of our industry. Do you have a story to share on how Farm Management Canada has helped you over the past 30 years? We'd love to hear it!

The Next Policy Framework begins April 1, 2023 and we're encouraged to see building sector capacity, growth and competitiveness through skills development and proactive planning have been recognized as priorities. THE NEXT AGRICULTURAL POLICY FRAMEWORK

The Next 5-year Agricultural Policy Framework (NPF) is scheduled to commence April 1, 2023.

We remain steadfast in advocating for continued support for fostering farm business management and skills development programming, resources and research. FARM FINANCIAL FLUENCY TRAINING PROGRAM

Financial literacy is a fundamental starting point for effective farm business management, helping producers understand the direct impact of their business decisions and the options and opportunities available going forward. Yet, research shows that basic financial literacy is a significant sore spot for the vast majority of Canada's producers.

In recognition of the need for greater financial literacy amongst Canada's producers, Farm Management Canada and MNP have joined forces to offer Farm Financial Fluency training for producers. The program is specifically designed to help producers understand, interpret, and use financial tools including balance sheets, financial statements, cash flow, budgets, and financial plans. Participants will be better equipped to have progressive discussions and planning sessions when working with their lenders, accountants and financial advisors.

The program is delivered virtually over the course of three 2-hour sessions coupled with an optional follow-up session with an MNP advisor for those seeking additional support.

Through the Farm Financial Fluency program, you will learn:

- ✓ Why financial reporting is important and to whom
- ✓ Key differences between types of financial reporting and who uses what
- ✓ Different farm business structures and their impact on financial reporting
- ✓ How to interpret your financial statements (balance sheet, income statement, cash flow)
- ✓ Financial ratios and how to use them to analyze risk
- ✓ How to spot potential financial issues and opportunities
- ✓ Tools and resources available to manage financial risk

THANK YOU TO OUR DELIVERY PARTNERS!

Farm Management Canada hosted 6 Farm Financial Fluency training programs from December 2021-March 2022 with focuses on grains and oilseeds, mixed grains and beef cattle, dairy and hog (farrow to finish).

Interested in hosting Farm Financial Fluency training for your members, clients and stakeholders?

AgriShield

AGRI SHIELD® – HELPS CANADIAN FARMERS WEATHER ANY STORM

Now available for a FREE TRIAL

It can be pretty hard to see risk coming when you're busy managing the day-to-day operations of your farm. It's easy to keep ploughing ahead and just deal with problems as they arise. Unfortunately, problems can pile up or snowball, jeopardizing the future of your operation, and the hardest part is trying to pinpoint just where these issues might crop up. That's where AgriShield® comes in.

AgriShield is a user-friendly risk assessment and management tool, developed by Farm Management Canada, that helps you identify risks to your farm and mitigate them through an itemized, prioritized action plan.

"This program is going to blow your mind. I am in awe of the thoroughness that has been put into it. There have been few things in my 75 years that have been so worth the time. It is so easy to move through, with loads of options to customize the information. Everyone who farms and everyone who is thinking about farming should do this!"

- Janice Schooley, Apple Hill Lavender

If you're wondering how an online tool could possibly determine risks to your unique operation, AgriShield breaks it out into six key areas of risk: people, finance, markets, management, business environment, and production. It then uses a series of questionnaires to determine potential vulnerabilities and creates a detailed risk profile followed by a to-do list that's prioritized based on the amount of risk and how prepared you are to manage it.

Farm Management Canada's goal is to ensure Canada's farmers are positioned for success through sustainable growth. This takes a comprehensive approach to managing risk on the farm. AgriShield is a powerful tool that can help farmers be proactive in strengthening their operations, confront change, and seize.

To learn more about AgriShield and to try it for free, visit www.myagrishield.ca

In partnership with:

ROOTS TO SUCCESS: TAKING A COMPREHENSIVE APPROACH TO MANAGING RISK

The Roots to Success project is making meaningful progress towards improved risk management for the agriculture and agri-food sector by promoting a comprehensive approach to managing risk. This project provides farmers and consultants working directly with farmers with much-needed training to identify, assess, and prioritize risks and create comprehensive risk management plans. The project will help establish industry benchmarks using baseline data to identify opportunities for policy and program improvement to meet the risk management needs of Canada's farmers. This includes looking at ways to establish linkages with industry initiatives including the government's BRM programs. The project is led by a National Risk Management Roundtable, comprised of a variety of industry stakeholder to inform and guide the project.

TRAINING WORKSHOPS

Farm Management Canada is conducting workshops to train producers on risk assessment and the implementation of a comprehensive risk management plan for their farm, and to train professionals offering consultative services to farmers to use a comprehensive risk management approach with their clients.

There are more workshops coming in 2022-2023! Stay tuned for more workshops by subscribing to our social media channels or emails!

Please note that because of the situation with COVID-19, all training sessions are being offered online until further notice.*

If you wish to host or sponsor a comprehensive risk management workshop in your area, for producers or for consultants, please contact Mathieu Lipari, Program Manager at Farm Management Canada: mathieu@fmc-gac.com.

The project is funded under the Federal Government's AgriRisk Initiatives.

AGRIRESPONSE – A WAY TO MEET ALL YOUR RISK MANAGEMENT NEEDS

COVID-19 has highlighted the importance of being prepared for change, to increase the capacity to build resilience of our farms, and to not only be ready to face the challenges ahead, but to be ready to seize the opportunities that may present themselves along with those challenges. This is why Farm Management Canada has created AgriResponse.ca, a new website designed to answer questions from Canadian producers on contingency planning, emergency preparedness and generally becoming more resilient when facing uncertainty.

As much as we encourage producers to take a proactive approach to managing risk, we realize many risk management responses are reaction. It is our hope that we can use the current pandemic as a way to help farmers consider emergency preparedness measures and contingency planning as a necessary component to managing the farm – to be prepared for whatever may happen, drawing on their current experiences of COVID.

The AgriResponse website will help to gather the needs and concerns of Canadian producers through an online venue where they can ask questions or vote for questions submitted by other producers, and receive responses directly from industry experts in order to find the best ways to prepare themselves for uncertainty.

About AgriResponse

Access expert advice, resources and tools to respond to risk situations.

- See best practices for farm resilience

AgriResponse now features a Recent Issues section.

Here are a few excerpts:

How the chip shortage is impacting farms

When COVID-19 was declared a pandemic by the World Health Organization (WHO),^[1] it wasn't clear to producers what that would mean for the demand for agricultural products. In Canada, we faced challenges such as an increased demand for wheat flour and a decreased demand for dairy, leading to dumping.^[2]

In a different industry, the world's silicon chip manufacturers expected demand for electronic devices to decrease, and so production of these essential components was slowed down. Very soon, however, demand not only increased, but it began to outpace the rate of production.^[3] This shortage of chips began to affect many other industries, including agriculture, which uses a lot of advanced technology.

What Business Risk Management Tools are Right for You?

Business risk management (BRM) is most often understood in reference to federal or provincial risk management programs aiming at mitigating the consequences of financial and production uncertainties.

But business risk management is more than that.

The approach of business risk management is also about reducing or eliminating risk by taking proactive, systematic action to ensure resilience to potential impacts resulting from known or unknown threats. This approach does not and should not exclude reactive supports, but can enable farmers to rely more on themselves to build holistic durability and adaptability into their farms. They can do so by having a plan to prevent, mitigate, and manage not only what can be controlled, but what cannot be controlled.

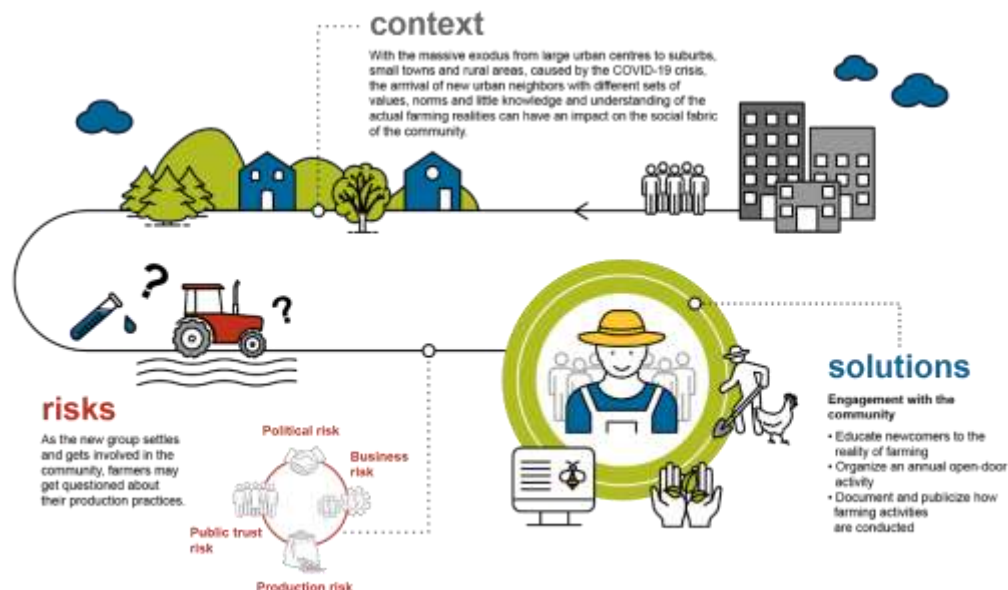

Supply Chain Disruptions

The COVID-19 pandemic has shown how food supply chain could be disrupted quickly at a large scale, especially in the meat industry but also for dairy and produce. This physical disruption of the supply chain also led to a volatile price environment.

More generally, the world is becoming more volatile and riskier with the increasing probability of events having large-scale impacts. Many of these global risks have the potential to profoundly disrupt agriculture and food supply chains: climate change and weather events, epizootics and pandemics. The increased risk of large-scale disruption will certainly lead to changes in how food supply chains are structured and governed.

Post-COVID Urban Exodus

With the massive exodus from large urban centres to suburbs, small towns and rural areas, caused by the COVID-19 crisis, the arrival of new urban neighbors with different sets of values, norms and little knowledge and understanding of the actual farming realities can have an impact on the social fabric of the host communities.

You can read more articles at www.agriresponse.ca

The project is funded under the Federal Government's AgriRisk Initiatives Program.

EXPANDING OPPORTUNITIES FOR CANADIAN AGRICULTURE BY UNDERSTANDING THE EXPERIENCE OF FARM WOMEN

Much has been said about the role of women on the farm, but little has been measured.

Farm Management Canada in partnership with CentricEngine Inc. is undertaking an important and timely research project that will serve as a benchmark, a guide and a view into the future and opportunities of a critical, underrepresented segment of Canada's farming population: farm women. Our goal is to gain a better understanding so that we can create a path forward to meet the unique current and future needs of this target group.

We have completed our Environmental Scan and qualitative research phase including focus groups and interviews with Canadian farm women and would like to thank everyone for their support and guidance.

Soon, we'll be launching a national survey and encourage farm women across Canada to participate!

We would like to thank our project partners for helping us get this vital research off the ground:

Provincial-Territorial (PT) Ministry membership to Farm Management Canada is the only way to connect with fellow Ministries across Canada to build relationships, share knowledge, foster new ideas, collaborate and leverage resources to continue to advance farm business management, programs and initiatives for farmers across Canada. The network meets by teleconference every quarter, and an annual meeting in the winter. Additional meetings are arranged as desired by the network.

The PT Network met online in March to share insights, showcase new programs and resources and strategic plan for the next policy framework and collaborative projects.
